

Anesthesia Risks In Liposuction Surgery

Dr. Chia-Lin Lee 李佳霖

Aside from surgical complications, anesthesia risks are also associated with Liposuction surgery both intraoperatively and postoperatively. Such anesthesia risks include hypovolemia, hypothermia, fat embolism, local anesthetics-associated systemic toxicity (LAST), which could potentially result in mortality in severe cases. Anesthesia management and prevention will be further discussed in this session.